ORTH AND COLEMAN producing the Gaiety Girls is the attraction at the Hipp this week with the usual three bills. Russ FORTH, new so far as we can recall on the Sun time, is headlined as comedian. The Dancing Demons is also a featured attraction on the bill. Run of pictures has been booked to five reels.

African Diamond Mine Story.

Madeline Travers is the star of "Lost Money," a drama of the African diamond mines in which the law of compensation is strongly set forth. Her role is that of Judith, spoiled child of Graham Atherstone, an Englishman seeking in vain to retrieve his lost fortunes in South Africa, who has concealed his embarrassed financial condition from his daughter. Adjoining his barren mine is the successful one of T. Lanyon, and Atherstone is entrusted with it while the owner is engaged in a perilous jungle rescue.

Atherstone yields to a temptation to save himself and daughter at Lanyon's expense, only to be confronted by Lanyon upon his return, after being reported dead. Lanyon cannot recover his property, but he carries off Judith. Their hardships and perils transform the spoiled girl into a woman of strong character and fine heart, humanizing her and Lanyon and drawing them together in ties not to be broken on their return to civilization. At the Nelson today.

The Dixie Bill.

The list of names connected with the screen version of Zane Grey's novel, "Desert Gold," at the Dixie, is a long one. The picture is presented by Benjamin B. Hampton and Ellinger Warner distributed by the Haskins Corporation through the Exchange, was directed by T. Hayes Hunter and has a lengthy cast of well known actors. E. K. Lincoln, Margery Wilson, Eileen Percy, W. Lawson Butt and Russell Simpson are among the leaders. The production has great merit. Its scenic beauty is remarkable. From beginning to end it is a fascinating revelation of the sublimity of the mountain country of the West. The outdoor locations have been chosen by a nature lover of rare skill and deep feeling. Against these magnificent backgrounds the characters of the Zane Grey story work out a complicated and melodramatic plot which would gain vastly in clarity and force if an attempt had not been made to retain the entire novel.

Readers of the book are familiar with the two love stories of almost equal importance that are carried through the action, and of the fights that Dick Gale and Captain George Thorne wage in behalf of Nell and Mercedes, their respective sweethearts. Of adventure there is no end. A lost mine of fabulous worth connects the opening with the final scenes. In between, Dick Gale saves his friend's sweetheart from being harmed by a Mexican bandit and takes them to the ranch of Jim Belding. Here, Dick meets Belding's adopted daughter, who turns out to be the child of the man who owned the lost mine. Dick also saves the life of an Indian, and when the Mexican bandit comes to the ranch and starts to make trouble the redman heads off most of his moves.

Rojas, the bandit, is determined to get Mercedes at any cost and force her to marry him. When Dick and Thorne and several cowboys escape from the ranch with Mercedes and head for Yuma, the bandit overtakes them, and one of the liveliest fights ever seen in a picture is staged on the tops of towering cliffs that look impossible to climb. The Indian once more saves the lives of the party and throws Rojas over the cliff. There are other motives used and other characters. The proof that Nell owns the lost mine and that her father and mother were legally married are found on the same paper.

Unusual Appeal Caused Selection.

In selecting the script for "Upside Down," scheduled at the Princess, "Lovely Reason," a story by George Agnew Chamberlain, was the choice, not alone because of the author's popularity, but because of the story's unusual appeal and the enthusiasm with which it was received when it was published in a popular magazine a short while ago.

Taylor Holmes as Archie Pim, a man infatuated with his own wife, is struck speechless when the lady, Anna Lehr, declares that she must be freed from the bonds of matrimony, that she may develop her individuality. She simply compels poor Archibald, the most faithful husband in captivity, to furnish her a "reason." The husband is completely at a loss, but, once forced along the way of the transgressor, he discovers his task becoming wonderfully congenial. And before the end of the picture in which he turns things upside down generally, Holmes, or, rather his director, Lawrence C. Windom, is said to have supplied twenty of the loveliest "reasons" for divorce that man ever set eyes upon.
